Almond Shell

A light, fibrous shell — an economical option for biomass fuel, animal bedding and cosmetic abrasive.

Almond shell is a shell left after the almond kernel is separated, with a lighter and more fibrous texture than other hard shells. It is supplied regularly from almond production and processing facilities in the Aegean region. Because its fibrous structure gives high absorbency, it is widely used as bedding on farms and in barns; at the same time its light, dry nature makes it a quick-lighting, economical fuel source. Owing to its soft texture, it is also used as a light abrasive on delicate surfaces.

KEY CHARACTERISTICS

- Light and fibrous, easy-to-process structure
- High absorbency — practical in bedding and filler
- Quick-lighting, economical biomass fuel
- Silica-free, suited to delicate use
- Natural, additive-free agricultural by-product
- Available in coarse or fine cracked form

MAIN AREAS OF USE

- Animal Bedding & Filler — Its fibrous structure increases absorbency; used on farms as economical bedding and filler.
- Biomass Solid Fuel — Its light, dry structure gives quick ignition; preferred in stoves and small boilers.
- Light Abrasive — Owing to its soft texture, used in delicate surface cleaning and cosmetic peeling.
- Compost & Soil Conditioner — Ground shell is used as an organic filler that aerates the soil.

PACKAGING AND DELIVERY

Big-bag, bulk truck/container or sack; coarse-cracked bedding batches and finely ground cosmetic batches are available.

Shipment note: Shipments by the truck to domestic farm and bedding suppliers, and by the container for export.
